

Luxembourg, 5th March 2018

To whom it may concern,

As Principal Investigator for the H2020 Marie Skłodowska-Curie Research and Innovation Staff Exchange ongoing project "MIREL – Mining and REasoning on Legal texts", I hereby certify that dr Livio Robaldo has been the main author of the project MIREL.

Livio Robaldo coordinated the writing of the project proposal, by collecting the contributions of each partner in MIREL, revising them, and integrating them in a uniform and coherent project proposal.

The project has been retained for funding with the overall score of 97.2%; it started on the 1st of January 2016 and it will last until the 31st of December 2019.

Livio Robaldo is now the scientific coordinator of MIREL and, in this role, he is currently managing the activity of the project, by monitoring the secondment plans and by following the research activities carried out by the sixteen participants.

Furthermore, in the context of MIREL he visited Stanford University from the 1st of October 2017 until the 15th of December 2017, conducting research on Natural Language Semantics in legal texts, towards the building of a knowledge base representing the provisions in the General Data Protection Regulation, which has been presented and discussed with researchers working at Stanford University.

Yours faithfully,

Prof. Leendert van der Torre,
Principal Investigator of the MIREL project
